Introduction

As the needs of 21st century learners and educators continue to transform, it is imperative that schools build capacity in their teachers. Teacher leaders are educators who have teaching responsibilities in a P-12 setting and take on leadership roles outside of their classrooms.¹

Teacher leadership creates opportunities for distributed, school- and district-wide leadership; it allows teachers a myriad of opportunities to develop their own practice and the practices of their colleagues.² Moreover, teacher leadership has been shown to positively impact job satisfaction,³ a major influencer on retention, while also building a pipeline within the profession.⁴ These impacts not only benefit teacher leaders, but also build a sense of professionalism that can attract others to the field.⁵ Most importantly, the positive influences of teacher leadership, such as increasing educator skillsets and retention, have been shown to lead to better outcomes for students.

With the passage of the Teacher Leader Endorsement law (N.J.S.A. 18A:26-2.18)⁶ teachers in New Jersey can add a Teacher Leader Endorsement to their instructional certificate. This has the potential to further grow teacher leadership across the state. The law requires that an eleven-member advisory board, representing an array of stakeholders, provide recommendations related to eligibility requirements and program of study; in no later than five years, the Teacher Leader Endorsement Advisory Board (TLEAB) will have the opportunity to evaluate programmatic and other data collected and make recommendations regarding non-supervisory roles and responsibilities for which a teacher leader endorsement should be required. The following report is intended to give New Jersey’s Commissioner of Education and State Board of Education the Teacher Leader Endorsement Advisory Board’s recommendations for obtaining the Teacher Leader Endorsement.

⁶ The Teacher Leader Endorsement law (N.J.S.A. 18A:26-2.18) was adopted in September 2015. The approved legislation can be found here.
Executive Summary

In September 2015, New Jersey’s Teacher Leader Endorsement was signed into law (N.J.S.A. 18A:26-2.18). To obtain the Teacher Leader Endorsement, candidates must (1) meet Eligibility Requirements and (2) complete a program of study grounded in the Teacher Leader Model Standards (TLMS). According to the law, program providers can be institutions of higher education, educational organizations, other non-profit entities, or a combination of these.

An eleven-member Teacher Leader Endorsement Advisory Board (TLEAB) was established by law (N.J.S.A. 18A:26-2.18) to provide the Commissioner of Education and the State Board of Education with recommendations related to the eligibility requirements and program of study needed to obtain the Teacher Leader Endorsement. The TLEAB is made up of representatives from stakeholder groups around the state, including American Federation of Teachers New Jersey (AFTNJ), New Jersey Association of Colleges for Teacher Education (NJACTE), New Jersey Association of School Administrators (NJASA), New Jersey Department of Education (NJDOE), New Jersey Education Association (NJEA), New Jersey Principals and Supervisors Association (NJPSA), and New Jersey School Boards Association (NJSBA). Additional information regarding the specific representation of these organizations is in the Committee section of the Appendices.

The TLEAB met monthly from February 2016 to March 2017. The TLEAB’s decisions were made by a two-thirds vote, with a minimum of eight members present. If less than eight members were present, the TLEAB held a discussion but did not take the vote until at least eight members were present.

The TLEAB had several discussions related to the goal of promoting the growth of teacher leadership across the state. In order to foster recognition and expansion of teacher leadership, the TLEAB agreed on several guiding principles for their work.

Members agreed with a variety of concepts regarding teacher leadership. First, that teacher leadership grows in a culture of shared decision-making and shared accountability. This leadership reaches its greatest potential when administrators embrace participatory leadership practices that value the voice of teacher leaders. Teacher leadership also thrives in cultures that support collegial job-embedded professional learning. In such a context, teachers are regularly engaged in reflective practice and the sharing of craft knowledge. Such a culture allows teacher leaders to surface organically as they share their practice with one goal in mind – enhancing student learning.

The TLEAB also agreed that teacher leadership takes many forms and the roles of teacher leaders, both formal and informal, vary in every school and district. The roles of teacher leaders will depend on the needs of the school and district.
Thirdly, the Teacher Leader Endorsement Advisory Board (TLEAB) had several discussions related to ensuring that the teacher leadership endorsement would foster the growth of teacher leadership and not dissuade teachers from taking on such vital roles. It is important to understand that teachers do not need the teacher leader endorsement in order to be teacher leaders. By participating in a high-quality program of study leading to the teacher leader endorsement, it is the hope of the TLEAB that teachers who want to remain in the classroom, yet take on leadership responsibilities in their schools, districts, and profession, use this option to develop a deeper knowledge and strengthen their leadership skills.

Along with in-depth discussions related to these key considerations, as well as the specific recommendations, the TLEAB meetings also included presentations from local, state, and national experts. These presentations were intended to better understand the broad spectrum of teacher leader initiatives and roles to ensure that the endorsement could be utilized to facilitate teacher leadership across the state. Presenters included teacher leaders from New Jersey school districts, representatives from the Department of Education, and program providers from educational organizations and Institutions of Higher Education. Presentations included discussions around research, best practices and models of teacher leadership, as well as the processes of forming and approving high-quality programs of study.

Using the information gathered from these presentations, as well as the ongoing discussions throughout the entire process, the TLEAB voted on its final recommendations in March 2017.

Regarding Eligibility Requirement recommendations, the TLEAB recommends that candidates are eligible to receive the Teacher Leader Endorsement if candidates complete an approved program of study and have:

- a New Jersey Standard Instructional Certificate;
- a minimum of three years of teaching experience; and
- a minimum of two effective or highly effective annual summative ratings in the three most recent years under the New Jersey evaluation system or appropriate equivalent criteria.

Regarding Program of Study recommendations, the TLEAB recommends that program providers must:

- integrate a practicum, field experience and/or internship tied to the learning and experience; and
- provide evidence of candidate’s competency based on Teacher Leader Model Standards (TLMS)-aligned assessments.
The Teacher Leader Endorsement Advisory Board (TLEAB) recommends that each program provider should have flexibility to:

- allow candidates to explore one or more Teacher Leader Model Standards (TLMS) domains through in-depth study;
- in the case of credit-bearing programs, determine the number of credit hours required to complete the program;
- establish the program length;
- consider previous experience as long as the candidate is able to provide evidence of competency in the TLMS; and
- determine the cost of its program.

Additionally, the TLEAB recommends that each local education agency (LEA), will have the flexibility to work collaboratively with stakeholders to determine the roles and responsibilities of endorsed teacher leaders.

These final recommendations received unanimous support from all members of the TLEAB.

The next steps for the TLEAB will include reconvening to analyze data and monitor outcomes of the approved programs of study, generating further recommendations. Since the TLEAB members have varying terms, the associations represented shall recommend replacement members.
Section II: Findings & Recommendations

Purpose of the New Jersey Teacher Leader Endorsement

The Teacher Leader Endorsement Advisory Board (TLEAB) believes that the purpose of the Teacher Leader Endorsement is as follows:

Purpose Statement

The Teacher Leader Endorsement acknowledges the holder possesses the skills, knowledge, and dispositions that help to transform school culture and positively influence practice among peers to improve learning outcomes for all students by:

1. Harnessing the collective knowledge of teachers;
2. Promoting shared governance and leadership in schools by working collaboratively with administrators, teachers, and other members of the school community;
3. Encouraging the development of professional cultures of collaboration in schools that allow for the growth of various informal and formal leadership roles in order to build capacity;
4. Advocating for positive educational change, equity, and social justice;
5. Modeling teaching excellence with a strong foundation in improving instruction, curriculum, assessment, and intervention; and
6. Capitalizing on their talent and experience to provide guidance, coaching, mentoring, influence, and direction to improve the effectiveness of teaching and learning.
Teacher Leader Endorsement Eligibility Requirements

The Teacher Leader Endorsement Advisory Board (TLEAB) recommends that candidates are eligible to receive the Teacher Leader Endorsement if the candidate completes an approved program of study and have:

- a New Jersey Standard Instructional Certificate;
- a minimum of three years of teaching experience; and
- a minimum of two effective or highly effective annual summative ratings in the three most recent years under the New Jersey evaluation system or appropriate equivalent criteria.

Teacher Leader Endorsement Program of Study Requirements

The Teacher Leader Endorsement Advisory Board (TLEAB) made the following recommendations related to program providers of the Teacher Leader Endorsement:

Program providers must:

- integrate a practicum, field experience and/or internship tied to the learning and experience; and
- provide evidence of candidate’s competency based on Teacher Leader Model Standards (TLMS)-aligned assessments.

Program providers should have flexibility to:

- allow candidates to explore one or more TLMS domains through in-depth study;
- in the case of credit-bearing programs, determine the number of credit hours required to complete the program;
- establish the program length;
- consider previous experience as long as the candidate is able to provide evidence of competency in the TLMS; and
- determine the cost of its program.
Local Use of Endorsement

In its investigation of teacher leader models and initiatives across the state, the Teacher Leader Endorsement Advisory Board (TLEAB) found that teacher leadership exists in varying forms and functions. In other words, teacher leadership exists in both formal roles as well as organic, informal roles. For this reason, the TLEAB suggests that the endorsement not be connected to job titles or responsibilities at the state level, but instead that it is up to the LEA to determine which jobs, roles, and responsibilities the teacher leader endorsement should fill. Therefore, the TLEAB recommends that each LEA have the flexibility to determine the roles and responsibilities of their endorsed teacher leaders. Additionally, LEAs should provide teacher leaders, at a minimum, the amount of time needed to complete an approved program of study and acquire the endorsement prior to creating teacher leader positions that require the endorsement. LEAs are encouraged to collaborate with stakeholders on these decisions.

Implementation Considerations

As LEAs make decisions around the most appropriate ways to use the teacher leader endorsement to grow leadership capacity within their schools, the TLEAB believes it is important to consider implementation within the district’s overall system. Effective teacher leadership flourishes with strong administrative leadership. This includes models of shared and distributed leadership. Districts should explore opportunities for leadership teams and stakeholders to work together to enhance school-wide initiatives and to improve student outcomes.
Section III: Moving Forward

Next Steps for Advisory Board

Monitoring and Measuring Impact of Teacher Leadership Policy

Within five years of adoption of the law, September 2015, the Teacher Leader Endorsement Advisory Board (TLEAB) will evaluate programmatic and other data collected from the approved providers. Additionally, the TLEAB will make recommendations to the State Board of Education regarding non-supervisory roles and responsibilities for which a teacher leader endorsement should be required.

The TLEAB will monitor any data collected from the approved providers of the program of study in order to support the TLEAB’s work. The data collection will protect individuals' privacy and will not be accessible to the public.

7 Any data collected from the approved providers of the program of study shall be provided to the Teacher Leader Endorsement Advisory Board to support the board's work. The data collection shall protect individuals’ privacy, and notwithstanding the provisions of P.L.1963, c.73 (C.47:1A-1 et seq.), the data shall not be accessible to the public.

Teacher Leader Model Standards

The TLMS are intended to codify, promote, and support teacher leadership as a vehicle for transforming schools to meet the needs of 21st-century learners.

Rather than serve as a comprehensive job description for teacher leaders, the TLMS instead describe seven domains of leadership. Each domain is further developed and supported by a list of functions that a teacher leader who is an expert in that domain might perform.

Domain I: Fostering a Collaborative Culture to Support Educator Development and Student Learning
Domain II: Accessing and Using Research to Improve Practice and Student Learning
Domain III: Promoting Professional Learning for Continuous Improvement
Domain IV: Facilitating Improvements in Instruction and Student Learning
Domain V: Promoting the Use of Assessments and Data for School and District Improvement
Domain VI: Improving Outreach and Collaboration with Families and Community
Domain VII: Advocating for Student Learning and the Profession
